From the Editor

Pleeeez, my friends, if you have an email address, send it to me asap! Thanks of course to those who have done so already, but still the vast majority of members have not. The email system was voted in as a measure to save time, but so far the effect has been more or less the opposite, what with having to maintain two lists.

If you genuinely cannot receive email, then please send me a request for a special paper copy – so far only about a dozen people have done this.

In order to read the email version, you will need the Acrobat Reader. This is freely and easily available from a number of sources, including the ALS website; and the website also holds the current issues and back issues of the newsletter if you want to get it directly from there.

Which brings me to the webpage – Simon Musgrave has been doing great things with it: check it out! He has even designed a logo, and would be glad of feedback from members on the logo or any aspect of the site. He is currently working on creating a 'Members Only' section for membership information.

Doug has also been doing great work on behalf of the Society, moving the matter of our incorporation along. Check out the constitution, and changes, inside.

I would like to add my thanks to Doug for all his help with the Newsletters. The changeover to email distribution has placed an extra burden on him as keeper of the membership lists. I also thank Jane Simpson, who as usual has been great in sending in news and information for the Newsletter.

Best wishes to all,   Helen Fraser

From the Treasurer

All documentation has been completed and submitted for the process of incorporation. This required us to insure against public liability for $5 million and, as I foreshadowed at the AGM, to alter the Constitution. This alteration has been kept to a minimum, and involves the addition of only one clause. This clause (VII) simply says that anything not covered in our present constitution will be dealt with under the Rules published by the NSW Department of Fair Trading. Copies of these rules are readily available at branches of the Department. After an exhausting (if not exhaustive) search through these rules, I could find little that I think ALS would actively object to, so will move at the AGM in Perth that the constitutional change be endorsed, if there are no other suggestions in the meantime. After that the matter goes on to the Department of Fair Trading for their decision.

Membership payments for 1999 have been drifting in fairly slowly, perhaps due to the fee increase. Members are reminded that the discount of $5 on all fees will apply until April 1st, so you are urged to renew your membership before then. If you wish to pay back-fees for 1998, please remember that it will cost you only $35, not $50. Unfortunately, people who have not paid for 1998 (i.e. are listed as 1997 on newsletter and/or AJL labels) will have to be removed from the membership list if payment is not forthcoming by April 1st.

From the Webpage author

Following the decision of the AGM last year to phase out the hard-copy newsletter, I volunteered to help Helen Fraser with the changes and with generally updating the Society's web pages. A few changes have happened already, as you may have noticed. But then again, you may not have done, as most of the alterations thus far are minor. However, we hope that over the coming months some more important changes will occur. So do keep looking at the pages occasionally, and do let me (or Helen) know if you think that something looks just awful, or doesn't work. And do let me know of you see a nice feature on someone else's site that you think might inspire us!

ALS-99

The 1999 ALS conference will be held in Perth in spring, the season for Western Australia's wildflowers and whale-watching. The conference runs from the evening of Tuesday September 28 to Friday October 1. As at ALS98, selected papers will be published on the web as Proceedings of the conference.

Preliminary information is now available at the conference website

http://www.arts.uwa.edu.au/ LingWWW/als99

Detailed information on registration and submission of abstracts will be made available in March, however proposals for workshops or symposia are welcome anytime. Please contact John Henderson, Centre for Linguistics, UWA:

jkh@cyllene.uwa.edu.au

Call for expressions of interest

The ALS's working party on teaching linguistics would like to hold a workshop at the 1999 ALS meeting in Perth to discuss teaching linguistics. Possible topics include: online delivery of courses, teaching first year students. If you are interested in contributing or have other suggestions, please e-mail all of the committee: Alan Dench, adench@uniwa.uwa.edu.au, Kate Burridge, K.Burridge@latrobe.edu.au, Helen Fraser, hfraser@metz.une.edu.au, Jane Simpson jhs@extro.ucc.usyd.edu.au

ALI-2000

The University of Melbourne Department of Linguistics and Applied Linguistics has agreed to host the next Australian Linguistic Institute ALI-2000 which will run from Monday 3rd July to Friday 14th July 2000, with a break in the middle for the ALS and ALAA conferences, which will overlap. The details are as follows:

Monday 3	ALI-2000
Tuesday 4	ALI-2000
Wednesday 5	ALI-2000
Thursday 6	ALI-2000, dinner
Friday 7	ALI-2000 workshops, ALAA, Bushdance
Saturday 8	ALAA and ALS
Sunday 9	ALAA and ALS
Monday 10	Social day, Bushwalk
Tuesday 11	ALI-2000
Wednesday 12	ALI-2000
Thursday 13	ALI-2000, BBQ Dinner
Friday 14	ALI-2000

Organizers for ALI-2000 and the conferences are:

ALI-2000 Organizers
Peter Austin (Chair), Julie Bradshaw (Co-ordinator), Keith Allan, Kate Burridge, Howard Nicholas, Andrea Truckenbrodt, Brian Paltridge, Brian Lynch, Tim McNamara, Jean Mulder, Nick Evans, Lesley Stirling, Janet Fletcher.

ALS Organizers
Keith Allan (Chair), Heather Bowe, Michael Clyne, Mark Newbrook, David Bradley.

ALAA Organizers
Howard Nicholas (Chair), Tim McNamara, Andrea Truckenbrodt, Lloyd Holliday.

An e-mail account has been set up:
ALI-2000@linguistics.unimelb.edu.au
A web site on the University of Melbourne server will be organised soon.

Call for expressions of interest in running courses

The organisers of ALI-2000 are interested to hear from colleagues who would like to present a course at the ALI in July 2000. Courses will be taught in 90 minute seminar format and will be either 6 hours or 12 hours in total. Proposed courses can be on any topic in linguistics and applied linguistics; presenters should indicate whether the course is introductory (no background in linguistics), intermediate (assumes at least first year linguistics) or advanced (honours or MA level). Presenters will be asked to recommend essay topics or assessable exercises for students enrolled in their courses, however they will not be expected to correct any work (this is the responsibility of the student's home organisation). Please send a course proposal giving an outline syllabus and reading list to ALI-2000, Department of Linguistics and Applied Linguistics, University of Melbourne, Parkville. Vic 3052 or by e-mail to the above address.

Constitution of the Australian Linguistic Society
(established 1957, amended 1979, 1998)

I. The Society shall be known as the Australian Linguistic Society. (herein called the Society.)

II. Objects:

1. To further interest in and support for linguistic research and teaching in Australia.

2. To organise an annual meeting and visits of local and overseas speakers.

3. To publish a journal of international standing.

4. To organise an international congress of linguists when appropriate.

III Membership:

1. There shall be four classes of membership: regular, joint, concessional and honorary. Any person or institution may become a regular member by vote of the Executive Committee and payment of dues.

2. Joint membership is available to couples who are accepted as such by the Executive Committee and who pay the dues set for joint membership. A joint membership shall be treated as a single membership with respect to receiving publications and other communications of the Society, but as two individual memberships for all other purposes.

3. Concessional membership is available to full-time students and to persons granted the concessional rate by the executive committee.

4. Honorary membership will be granted by vote of the annual general meeting to recognise outstanding achievement.

5. Dues shall be determined by vote of the Annual General Meeting.

6. The financial year of the Society shall be the calendar year. On or before 31st March of each year, each regular, joint and concessional member shall pay dues to the Treasurer. There shall be a late fee to be determined by vote of the Annual General Meeting in case dues are paid after 31st March. Unfinancial members shall forfeit their membership rights. Members who are unfinancial for more than one year shall be removed from the membership roll. Only financial members may vote and hold office in the Society. Only financial members may offer papers for presentation at meetings of the Society.

IV. Officers:

1. The Officers of the Society shall be a President, three Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, a Secretary, an Associate Secretary, and the Editor of the Journal.

2. The officers shall be elected by secret ballot at an Annual General Meeting of the Society, to take office at the conclusion of that Meeting.

3. The terms of office for officers other than the Editor of the Journal shall run for two Annual General Meetings. The President, two Vice-Presidents and Secretary shall be elected in even numbered years, beginning 1980. One Vice-President, Treasurer and Associate Secretary shall be elected in odd numbered years, beginning 1979. The Editor shall be elected in 1979 for six years and thereafter for a term of five years.

4. The Executive Committee shall be composed of the above officers. Executive Committee meetings may be held as required and are open for observation to all members of the Society and to designated observers from affiliated societies. Postal votes of the Executive Committee may be conducted by the Secretary as required.

5. The Executive Committee may appoint one of the Vice-Presidents to deputise for the President or other officer in his absence. If an Annual General Meeting is not scheduled within six months, vacancies (other than a Vice-Presidency) shall be filled by nomination by the Executive and postal ballot of members, for the remaining term of the office.

V. Meetings.

1. There shall be an Annual General Meeting of the Society. The President or his deputy shall chair the Meeting. A quorum shall consist of no less than twenty-five members.

2. a. Decisions at the Annual General Meeting shall be by simple majority of those present.

b. The President shall have a casting vote except at an election to the Presidency in which he is a candidate.

c. On the request of six members, voting on decisions other than election of officers shall be by secret ballot.

d. At elections for an officer, a person nominated may not vote for an office for which s/he is a candidate.

3. The executive committee shall appoint a Conference Committee to arrange each meeting .

4. The Conference Committee shall review abstracts of papers offered for presentation at the meeting; their decisions concerning acceptance of such papers shall be final.

VI. Publications:

1. The Editor of the Journal shall be responsible for the editorial content and format of the Journal and his/her decision shall be final. The Editor, in consultation with the rest of the Executive Committee, may appoint the Editorial Board.

2. The Associate Secretary shall be responsible for the newsletter.

3. The Journal and the newsletter shall be sent to all financial members of the Society.

VII. For all other matters, the Rules of the Society shall be the Model Rules for the incorporation of Associations, according to the Association Incorporation Act, 1984 – Regulation 1994, Clause 8, of the NSW Department of Fair Trading.

VIII. Amendments:

1. This constitution may be amended at an Annual General Meeting of the Society.

2. An Amendment shall be submitted in writing to the Secretary, signed by at least six members of the Society.

3. An Amendment shall be voted on immediately prior to the election of officers at an Annual General Meeting.

Linguistic software workshop

A workshop will be held on Saturday 6th March in the Transient Building, University of Sydney, to look at software for linguistic fieldwork, including annotation, linking text and sound, dictionary interfaces and the use of geographical information (Mapinfo). We will discuss collaboration on future work. If you are interested in attending, please contact Chris Manning <cmanning@mail.usyd.edu.au>

News from the Research Centre for Linguistic Typology

New staff member Ulrike Zeshan, from the University of Cologne, has been appointed Research Associate for twelve months from April 1999. Ulrike has worked on Indo-Pakistani sign language and the typology of sign languages. Her work will add an exciting new dimension to the Centre's academic endeavours, and we look forward very much to welcoming Ulrike and her family to Canberra.

Visitors During 1999 the RCLT will again host visits from a number of distinguished international linguists. Professor Masayoshi (Matt) Shibatani from Kobe University arrived in Canberra in December to take up a three-month Visiting Fellowship at the Centre. Visits by a number of scholars who specialise in African linguistics are also planned: in March we will welcome Professor Paul Newman from Indiana University to the RCLT for six weeks, Professor Mauro Tosco from the Isituto Universitario Orientale in Napoli, Italy, will arrive for a six-month visit in May, and Professor Hans-Jürgen Sasse from the University of Cologne will take up a Visiting Fellowship for four months commencing in June, during which time he will also teach a typology course for the Linguistics Department on the Theoretical Problems of Polysynthesis.

Publications A number of important publications are now in press. These include Sasha Aikhenvald's major monograph Classifiers:A Typology Of Noun Categorisation Devices which is being published by Oxford UP (and should be available by the end of the year), a volume of papers selected from our 1997 Workshop, entitled Changing Valency: Case Studies In Transitivity, and a multi-authored volume on The Amazonian Languages, edited by Sasha Aikhenvald and Bob Dixon, both of which will be published by Cambridge UP.

News from LiSC

The Language in the School Curriculum (LiSC) project, which has been in operation since the end of 1996, is a national project of the Australian Linguistic Society (ALS) and the Australian Academy of the Humanities (AAH). Its primary goal is to increase awareness and understanding of English Language and language in general in the school curriculum.

Funding for 1999 has been sought from DETYA, through the Australian Academy of the Humanities, in the form of a Special Projects Grant. However, due to delays within DETYA, the outcome of the grant application is still unknown and new developments have been put on hold until the result is known.

Ongoing projects such as the Language and Literacy Content Area Team are continuing though. This team is linked to the Early Language and Literacy Project which is a joint partnership between LiSC and the Victorian Board of Studies. The goal of this project is to develop and produce a resource book, Language Knowledge for Early Literacy: A Handbook for Teachers. Doug Absalom is the writer for the project. Those interested in providing comments on the draft handbook should contact Jean Mulder at j.mulder@linguistics.unimelb.edu.au.

For further information about Language in the School Curriculum visit our web site at http://www.arts.unimelb.edu.au/Dept./LISC/.

News from UNE

Helen Fraser will be leaving UNE for two years from the end of first semester 1999. Watch this space for information about a possible contract position to fill her place!

Obituary

We regret to announce the death of Mrs Kathleen Trimmer, one of the very few native speakers of Australian indigenous languages who worked as a linguist, and a friend and former colleague of a number of ALS members.

Mrs Trimmer's father's language was Ngatju, but she spoke Wangkatha, as she had grown up at Mount Margaret Mission. She studied linguistics at Batchelor, and was a mentor to other students there. In the mid-1980s she worked at the Institute of Applied Aboriginal Studies (Mount Lawley College Campus), supporting Nyungar language work, while continuing to work on her Wangkatha material. She was a devoted prison visitor and did some language work in gaol.

When Wangkanyi Ngurra Tjurta, the Goldfields Language Centre, was set up in Kalgoorlie, she started working there as the linguist. She was the inspiration of the Language Centre. There, she concentrated most of her linguistic work on Wangkatha, composing stories and poems, doing translations, preparing language-learning material and dictionary material. [See also: http://www.aiatsis.gov.au/LOTM/apr97.htm]

The demands on, and expectations of, an Aboriginal linguist are exceedingly high. But, as those of us who worked or went to conferences with her know, she met them with courage, grace, passion, good humour and joking. We will miss her.

The committee of the Australian Linguistics Society has sent a message of sympathy to her family and her colleagues at the Language Centre (wnt@aurum.net.au).

[Compiled by Jane Simpson with information from Pat McConvell, David Nash, and Nick Thieberger]

Dear Sirs and Madames,
I am a student at New York University's College of Arts and Science (CAS). CAS has a language requirement, but does not recognize American Sign Language courses as filling that requirement. I am trying to change that: I would like ASL to be recognized as a language by my school. One method I am attempting is by citation of authorities; hence, I have contacted you, linguists.

I would appreciate those of you who agree that ASL should be treated as any other language to contact me with that opinion, so that I may add your names to a list of authorities with whom my stance agrees.

I thank you very much for your assistance.

About ALS

Objectives

1) To further interest in, and support for, linguistic research and teaching in Australia.
2) To organise an annual meeting and visits of local and overseas speakers.
3) To publish a journal of international standing.
4) To organise an International Congress of Linguists when appropriate.
5) To organise an Australian Linguistic Institute.

Benefits of membership

1) Free quarterly Newsletter.
2) Free subscription to the Australian Journal of Linguistics.
3) Membership rates for ALS conference registration.
4) Entitlement to present papers at the Annual Conference.
5) The more intangible benefits of belonging to the network of Australian linguists.

ALS subscriptions and address changes

Please use the form below for both subscriptions and address changes, or email directly to the Treasurer, Doug Absalom. Please note that the Treasurer maintains the only membership and address list, so this information should be sent directly to him rather than to the Newsletter or Journal editors. Thanks.

The ALS journal

The ALS publishes a journal, The Australian Journal of Linguistics (AJL) twice a year. The last issue was 18/2 (October 1998), with 19/1 currently in progress.

Correspondence regarding general AJL matters should be sent to Peter Collins. Correspondence regarding papers and reviews should be sent to any of the editors or the reviews editor (all addresses on this page).

Next Newsletter

The ALS Newsletter is published four times per year. This is the first issue for 1999. The next issue (99/2) will come out in mid May. Copy will be due on the first Monday in May.

Please send copy, and any queries, comments or suggestions to the Newsletter Editor, Helen Fraser, contact details this page.
